

In the wake of the new coronavirus outbreak, Laox shipped 1 million surgical masks to China in an emergency move.

Since the outbreak of the new coronavirus, Laox Co., Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as “we”), has taken various measures such as making all employees wear a surgical mask, establishing a crisis management committee, and forming a guideline to respond to the situation.

While the effects of the new coronavirus outbreak are further spreading, YUNYI SHANGHAI Co., Ltd., our group company, procured a total of 1 million surgical masks and shipped them to China through Suning in an emergency move.

Since the new coronavirus outbreak, surgical masks and sterilization products have been in short supply in China. In the future, we will further strive to better serve the Chinese market in collaboration with Suning, taking advantage of our high product procurement capability.

We will continue to respond to the situation surrounding the new corona virus outbreak swiftly and effectively.
